

Your KinderGlo can be used right out of the box. It should come ready charged, however, if you find that your night light has no charge then please follow the following instructions below.

To Charge the KinderGlo:

Plug the AC adapter cable into the charging base and the adapter into a convenient wall outlet.

Set the KinderGlo onto the charging base.

- The indicator light will glow red when charging.
- When the KinderGlo nightlight is removed from the charging base it will automatically light as if the button had been pushed once, which is ideal if your little one wakes in the night.
- If there is a power failure, the KinderGlo nightlight will light automatically if setting on the charging base.
- For best results use KinderGlo until the battery has run out completely before recharging.

Light Use:

To turn on the KinderGlo press the light button on the bottom of the nightlight, this will also select the changing color mode. To select Blue, Red or Green, press 2, 3, or 4 times as shown in the following Chart.

FAQs:

Do I have to charge before I use?

No, your KinderGlo batteries have already been charged. The amount of charge may vary but it is advisable to use the nightlight until the battery runs out before you recharge. Please note it should take approximately 10 Hrs to recharge a dead battery.

How often should I charge the battery?

As with any rechargeable battery, you will get maximum usage and battery life if you let the battery run down completely between charges and then fully charge again before use.

Can I use the KinderGlo on the charger as a table lamp?

The nightlight has been designed to be a portable battery powered LED light and functions best if fully charged then allowed to be used of the base until recharging is needed.

When I plug the charging base the LED indicator light flashes green then red then off, is that OK?

Yes, this is a self test process that assures the charger is OK. It should happen. When you put the KinderGlo onto the base the indicator light should glow red to indicate it is charging.

What should I do if something was missing from the package or I have some other Question?
